Q1. Tell us about yourself?

- A. First of all, I would like to thank you and the company for giving me this opportunity to present myself in front of you and accept my candidature. Coming to myself, As you know my name is Navdeep. I have humble beginnings from Hyderabad and grew up understanding the importance of working hard. My father was an employee in a private bank and always taught me different lessons about the true nature of goodwill and hard work. I began showing interest in Programming during my school years. Studying Computer Science opened my world to the immense possibilities in this field and I immediately got excited to finish my schooling and enter this working. Apart from this, I have a special interest in game designing and have successfully participated in various competitions where I have shown my talent. My interest in sports manifested in me playing cricket all throughout my childhood and am an avid supporter of SRH.

Q2. What are your weaknesses?

- A. I am a perfectionist and am obsessed with attention to detail. This sometimes derails me off the project as I begin to minutely address small issues within the projects. In order to exceed fast, I end up taking more responsibilities than I can handle. I thrive on feedback on my performance. If I don't receive them, I sometimes miss my mark and get drifted in the way I've been working.

Q3. What are your hobbies?

- A. I have only one hobby. Yet, it consumes all my free time. I enjoy reading and have always been a voracious reader. Although I prefer reading fiction, I make a deliberate effort to read at least one non-fiction book in a couple of months.

Q4. Why should we hire you?

- A. Honestly, I possess all the skills and experience that you're looking for. I'm pretty confident that I am the best candidate for this job role. It's not just my background in the past projects, but also my people skills, which will be applicable in this position.

Q5. Why do you want to work with this company?

- A. "I see this as a step to bigger and better things." While no employer expects every worker to stay with the organization for the long term, a response like this one implies you're more focused on the future than the now. It also suggests that you already have one foot out the door before you've even been hired.

Q6. Where do you see yourself 5 years from now?

- A. Over the next few years, I want to explore and develop skills in project management. In five years, I want to have gained experience in leading projects for major clients. I will be looking for opportunities to expand my responsibilities within this role to work towards my goal.

Q7. What do you know about our company?

- A. I've known about your company for a couple of years now because I've been working in this same industry. Your company is one of the names I think of in this industry, which is why I was excited to apply for this job when I saw it posted on your website.

Q8. Are you a leader or a follower?

- A. I do see myself as a leader. "I consider myself a leader because I am someone who is confident in my own decisions. I believe that I know enough about the job that I make good decisions and my opinion is valued. I also like to help others, and work towards our common goal, so we all succeed."

Q9. Why should you be hired for this internship?

- A. I have all the skills and qualifications listed in the job description, and if you hire me, I promise to deliver quality work throughout the tenure of the internship. I possess excellent communication skills, I'm a team player, and most importantly, I'm a dedicated worker. All I want is a chance to prove it to you.

Q10. Have you ever made a mistake? How did you handle it?

- A. When I first became an assistant manager of a testing branch, I tried to take on everything myself, from the day-to-day operations of the branch to making all of the testing works. I quickly learned that the best managers know how to delegate effectively so that work is done efficiently. Since then, I have won numerous awards for my testing skills, and I believe a lot of this has to do with my ability to delegate effectively.
